

JUNE 2019

Come Play With Me Mommy!

don't let your wolves descend...read about it on the blog!

A Note to the Mama's,

June is prime summer time! Or at least it is here for us in the US. I know I have viewers from all over the world, so I really hope this fun schedule works for you! I apologize in advance if it doesn't. I decided to go with a mainly summer themed activities to really milk all this nice weather.

For the month of June, I decided to come up with a 30 Day Activity Challenge. My daughter and I will be going through it with you, and I'm sure you'll see a lot of our fun on the blog. I tried to pick activities that don't require a lot of money or crazy supplies, as part of my free plans initiative this year. (It was one of my 2019 goals.)

Anyway, I hope you find this month's challenge inspires you to have a closer relationship with your young children and gives you something fun to do with them! In my life, this month is going to be a little busier than my "normal" June. I'll be attending 2 summer college classes as well as working and striving to create my own engineering firm and keep up the blog. For me planning these activities is a way to ease the stresses and have a wonderful, playful, relationship with my daughter, and hopefully give her a fun summer to remember!

Have a great month of June, and as always feel free to email me with any questions, activity ideas you would like to see brought to life on the blog, or if you just want to chat.

~Brie

June 2019

Picture Caption

| Sunday | Monday | Tuesday | Wednesday | Thursday | Friday | Saturday |
|-----------------------------|-------------------------------------|----------------------------|--------------------------------|-----------------------------|--------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| | | | | | | 1 Read a good book |
| 2 DIY BUBBLE WANDS* | 3 Jump rope | 4 DIY Wind Chimes* | 5 Swim | 6 Water bucket toss* | 7 Outdoor plate painting* | 8 Outdoor obstacle course* |
| 9 Hopscotch | 10 Yoga | 11 Aluminum foil river* | 12 DIY Sun Crayons* | 13 Water Balloon Pinata* | 14 Go to the park | 15 Chalk Obstacle course* |
| 16 Family dinner? | 17 Water beads sensory activity* | 18 Dance party! | 19 DIY pool noodle boats* | 20 Go to the library | 21 Movie Night with Popcorn | 22 Trip to sonic, take a pet! |
| 23 Race or go for a walk | 24 Read a good book | 25 Tie Dye Baby Wipe* | 26 Play with water balloons | 27 Bake Something | 28 Foot Print Paint Art | 29 Make silly faces and LAUGH |
| 30 Frisbee in the yard | | | | | | |

The * mean the activity is described further on the next page.

I hope you all have a great month of June!

Be sure to check out the blog for MORE fun activities, or to see what the Mommy Daughter Love team is up to!

June 2: DIY Pipe Cleaner Bubble Wands sounded like something fun to try, even though its not the most effective way to blow bubbles. All you need is a bowl for your bubble soaps, some pipe cleaners and the actual soap. You shape one end of the pipe cleaner into a circle or some other fun shape, leaving the other end long for the handle.

June 4: This is an activity I snagged from one of my Pinterest Boards. You can wrap a stick with washi tape to make it pretty (optional), and then you tie string with beads attached to the stick. You can tie a string to each end of the stick, and then tie it around the tree. Yea, that was and over use of the word "tie". I know my daughter doesn't know how to tie yet, so this could be a learning experience. She does love to make beaded bracelets! Here's the link if you want to check out the activity in a little more detail:

<http://blog.consumercrafts.com/jewelry-main/diy-wind-chimes-for-kids/>

June 6: I discovered a really fun sponge toss, where you try to land sponges in different buckets. I don't use a lot of sponges, I'm more of a rags or paper towel kinda girl, but It looked like something fun! So wither you use pool toys, or sponges or something else, tossing them in buckets of water would be a fun way to beat the heat with your kiddos. Here the link I found to the activity:

<http://seevanessacraft.com/2015/06/craft-summer-sponge-toss-water-game/>

June 7: For the out door paper plate painting I was thinking painting flowers on paper plates, using acrylic paints. But that's just me. This activity is super modifiable. You could even finger paint it if you guys don't have brushes.

June 8: An outdoor obstacle course can be done it whatever way you guys would like to. I found a link that shows jumping in and out of hula hoops placed on the ground. You could also use chalk drawings to jump around on, or even just set up sticks. Here's a link to the one I found involving a lot of cool outdoor items and pool stuff: <https://www.pre-kpages.com/outdoor-obstacle-course/>

June 11: Aluminum Foil River Sensory Play
<https://picklebums.com/make-a-river/>

June 12: These DIY Summer Sun Crayons sounded like an interesting experiment. We discovered that you can melt crayons that are broken up in muffin liners in the summer sun, bring them in, then you have fun rainbow crayons! We want to see if it works, but the website link on Pinterest was broken.

June 13: Fill a regular sized balloon with water and hand it from a tree to make a pinata!

June 15: This activity is super simple and easy to do in a crunch. You simply draw lines in chalk and you kiddo walks on them. You can make this as complicated or easy as you like.

June 17: Playing with water beads makes for a great activity! You can buy them at dollar trees in a variety of colors. Have some sensory bin fun this week!

June 19: DIY Pool Noodle BOATS This is in a language that I don't speak, but if you click the link you can see a photo of the craft. You cut up a pool noodle and it is your float. Then you can shove staws into it and tape or glue on little construction paper sails, Looks super cute.

<https://picgratz.com/best/20-brincadeiras-para-fazer-com-criancas-nas-ferias-escolares/>

June 25: All you need is some baby wipes, markers and rubber bands. Check out more of the activity here

<https://www.icanteachmychild.com/easy-tie-dye-art-with-baby-wipes/>

June 28: For this activity it is best done outside. Basically, you have your kids dip their feet in paint and then walk on paper.

mommy daughter love!